A Little Talk on Credits.

On account of the steady increase in cost of supplies, labor and all expenses incident to the business, a great many laundries have recently gone on a cash basis, or raised their prices. The Excelsior Laundry of Vinita does not intend to do either. A VERY LARGE proportion of our customers pay their bills promptly, and we appreciate their patronage, and the courteous treatment we always receive at their hands. We are constantly striving to improve our service and are always glad to accommodate all in any way. This class of customers should not suffer for the short-comings of others. On the other hand the expense of a delivery outfit is heavy, the salary of the driver, and the cost and up-keep of team and wagon. If a driver, after calling for and delivering a small package, has to make two or three trips to collect the bill, we have lost money on it, as we have to pay him for more time than the charge on that package amounts to. The expense of running a laundry is practically on a cash basis; all labor is paid each week, and all other items must be paid promptly. Hereafter drivers will be held responsible for the prompt collection of charges on packages belonging to customers with whom we have no regular account, and they are positively instructed to return all packages to the laundry on which they cannot collect charges promptly. This is not intended as an arbitrary or unjust action but one that is necessary to the safe conduct of the business.

Fatal French Blank Cartridge.

A strange and sad accident occurred in the course of drill maneuvers at Montreuil-sous-Bois, in the suburbs of Paris, where a soldier was killed by a blank cartridge discharged at him by a fellow soldier. A company of the Thirty-first regiment was taken out to Montreuil for maneuvers. At three o'clock in the afternoon the lieutenant in command decided to order a sham attack on a fort, which his soldiers were to storm. Some of the soldiers were posted as sentries, and the others were told that in storming the imaginary fort they were to try specially to take the sentries prisoners, but a formal order was given to the soldiers that they were not to load their rifles. In spite of this a shot was suddenly heard, and a soldier fell with a groan. He was a young recruit called Laurent, and near him stood another soldier who had acted as sentry and was completely dumfounded by what had happened. Either he did not know that there was a cartridge in the weapon or he fired thinking that it was only a part of the sham fighting. Laurent was taken to the hospital at Begin, and soon afterward expired. He had been killed by the packing of the blank cartridge, which, being fired within only a yard or two of him, acted like a bullet. The unfortunate soldier was the eldest son of a widow, who has three smaller children to bring up.—Paris Correspondence London Telegraph.

Sidelight on Lloyd-George.

On the day Lloyd-George became chancellor of the exchequer he left the house with a friend of his boyhood (and his love of old friends is not the least attractive phase of his character). As they talked of his advancement he said: "In all my career I do not remember a hand being held out to me from above and a voice saying: 'Bring i' thy yoke' (climb thou up here). But don't misunderstand me," he went on, "there have been thousands of hands which have pushed me up from behind." He does not forget these hands. He does not forget from whence comes his authority and his commission. There have been times when one has feared—times when his light anchorage seemed in danger of yielding to the impact of opportunism. But that memory of his own people, that loyalty to the inspiration of the mountains and the simple traditions of his fathers has saved him and will save him.—London Daily News.
